Things Keep Happening
Who Was Elizabeth's Father?
Copper Men, Look Out
Foolish Boycott

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1930, King Features Synd., Inc.)

NEXT TUESDAY comes the election, exciting for candidates, dull for voters. They have learned not to expect much from promises.

The distinguished Japanese Prince Tonkuguwa, head of the Mikado's house of peers, now visiting us, exemplifying Oriental wisdom, "listens, looks, says nothing."

He merely intimates that things are happening all the time, earthquakes, massacres, on the island of Formosa, panics and depressions. No matter what the reporters poured out, he answered, "That's nothing. It happens all the time."

The voters don't expect the election of this man or that, to keep things from "happening all the time."

The bigness of our country is emphasized by the indifference of one part of it to what the other parts are doing.

How many in New York know anything about elections in Florida, Washington, Maine, Louisiana, Oklahoma?

How many of the 123,000,000 people in the country could tell you the names of the 48 States without hesitation, to say nothing of locating them?

We have grown big like the dinosaurs of old and must trust a good deal to luck.

Dean Inge, of St. Paul's in London, calls a spade a spade with a vengeance. First he attributed St. Paul's alleged inspiration to the effects of epileptics.

Now, he says, Queen Elizabeth was not really the daughter of Henry the Eighth. He has studied the Tudor portraits and while Henry's children, Mary and Edward, got their faces from Henry, he had nothing to do with the face of his supposed daughter, Elizabeth.

The dean decides that Elizabeth had not a drop of Henry's Tudor blood in her veins. And declares, "The flighty Anne Boleyn, and some person unknown, gave us our greatest sovereign."

That is not much of a compliment to England's royal blood, but it is not unusual. Outsiders have contributed to the grandeur of royal lines before, and of other lines.

Voltaire was surely not the son of the dull notary, Arouet. In a comparatively recent royal marriage, the supposed vigorous German royalty brought in to improve the blood was actually the son of a Jewish court musician. Lord Salisbury, when prime minister, gave the facts to Mrs. Greene, widow of the historian. Lord Northcliffe, when asked about it, said to this writer, "Of course it's true, everybody knows it, but we don't talk about it."

HENRY THE EIGHTH suspected that something was wrong when he saw Anne Boleyn at a tournament dropping her handkerchief as a gesture to her sweetheart in the lists. When he had her head chopped off while her daughter, Elizabeth, was in her infancy, he named the youthful Lord Rochford, Sir Francis Weston, Henry Morris, William Brereton and a musician named Marks Meaton. He had all of those men executed also and the world will never know to which, if any of them, it owes Elizabeth, who turned back the Armada, executed many on her own account, including some of her own suitors, and was perhaps the most capable queen that ever lived.

Mr. Ryan of Anaconda Copper, Daniel C. Jackling of Utah Copper and others representing American copper stock owners face competition and problems as great as those confronting oil men.

A couple of years ago when the price of copper now selling under 10 cents was supposed to be pegged forever at "not less than 18 cents," the copper industry was reminded in this column that it might be overlooking future trouble from Africa.

Convict Killed in Sing Sing Outbreak

ANOTHER SHOT AS FIVE TRY TO FIGHT THEIR WAY OUTSIDE

Guard Wounded in Shoulder as Prisoners and Officers Clash

TWO STILL AT LARGE

Hiding Within Prison Area While Extra Police Conduct Man Hunt

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 1 (INS)—One convict was killed, another seriously wounded, when five men attempted to escape from Sing Sing prison.

Guards fought it out with the mutineers.

One was captured and two others were at large inside the prison area.

The outbreak came when the five convicts were returning from prison church.

A prison guard was wounded.

The dead convict is Harry Gordon, serving a 10-year sentence for robbery.

Herbert Davis, serving a grand larceny term of from five to 10 years, was wounded.

TWO STILL IN HIDING

Ed Ayan, convict, had the fight taken out of him by a discharge of tear gas and surrendered. Ryan is serving 30 years for assault and robbery.

The two convicts who escaped to hide inside the prison enclosure were Joseph Pielli and William Lanpier. A battle-squad of prison guards combed the area for them.

The attempt to escape was made in the new prison on the east side of the New York Central Railroad yards. Seven hundred other convicts are confined in the cell blocks where the attack was made.

Warden Lewis E. Lawes said the situation was under control, and that other prisoners had made no attempt to join the mutineers.

GUARD OVERPOWERED

The five convicts, three of them armed, held up a guard after the outside gates of the cell block had been locked for the night.

The guard was forced to surrender his keys. The convicts then opened the outer door and fled into the yard.

Other guards rushed to the home of Warden Lawes and told him there was a wholesale escape under way.

The warden ordered the siren sounded and telephoned for police aid from Ossining. The outer walls then were manned by additional guards and local police reinforcements.

The flood lights of the yard were turned on and the guards began searching for the convict quintet.

GUN DUEL STAGED

They were found hiding in a space between the new mess hall and the new cell block.

With machine guns backing them up, guards gripping tear gas bombs crept up on the five.

Marquard, former soldier and an expert shot, returned the fire. One of his bullets struck Harry Gordon, convict, squarely in the forehead. Gordon was killed.

Warden Lawes denied there had been any rioting among the prisoners, although the sound of the emergency sireen caused an uproar throughout the prison.

Lawes said the five men apparently had planned the outbreak themselves and that the other convicts knew nothing of their plans.

CAMBRIDGE BABY FALLS TO DEATH ON FATHER'S SAW

THE ROLE of "father's helper" brought death to Alfred Browne, 2, of Tuttle st., Cambridge, yesterday when he fell against an electric saw in the cellar of the Browne home.

Browne went to another part of the cellar for an instant only to turn at the screams of the boy. He rushed him to the street and to Cambridge Hospital in a passing auto, but the boy was pronounced beyond aid.

Public Works Construction in State Gets Under Way; Confer on Electrification

WORK FOR ALL IN NEWTON

$1,400,000 City Program Is Ready to Start; $8,000,000 for Crossings in 1931

Massachusetts in general and Boston, Worcester, Newton, Waltham, and the American Legion in particular, went job hunting yesterday for the unemployment.

Plans for public works of approximately $10,000,000 were given impetus that places actual construction virtually at hand.

Pans for early ecctrification of railroads to provide work was the big problem facing Gov. Allen's emergency committee headed by James J. Pheean.

A sub committee wil meet Thursday with the Department of Public Utilities to devise ways and means for an immediate start.

At the same time came an announcement from the governor that $8,000,000 of the $25,000,000 for abolition of grade crossings will be spent in 1931.

Senators Buy It, But Few Pay

—By Arthur "Bugs" Baer—

They had a spy in the Senate to see that the eighteenth amendment wasn't violated more than usual.

We know that the laws should be elastic.

But, gosh, they don't have to be pure rubber.

The spy was very inconspicuous. He wore a green hat, red shoes and came to work on a bicycle.

He only spoke out of turn.

So everybody thought he was another senator

So send your favorite spy to Washington.

The man in the green hat has large list of lawmakers who bought liquor from him.

He has a smaller list of those who paid him.

Pass around the drinking thimbles, boys, and we will drink Stephen Decatur's toast:

"My country, wet or dry, it ain't a bad mixture."

DR. CLAUDE DORNIER, whose giant DO-X, the largest air plane in the world, is all set at Altenrhein, Switzerland, to begin its flight to the United States.

CITY TERRORIZED BY OIL VOLCANO

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 1 (AP)—Oklahoma City had a few brief moments of panic late today as fire swept through oil soaked grass southeast of the city, where an uncontrolled volcano of oil roared into the sky.

Scores of weary firemen, oil field workers and National Guardsmen quenched the flames in less than an hour, but not before panic had cleared residential districts in the danger zone near the wild No. 1 Stout well.

Adding to the scare came the report that another great gusher near the Stout was tearing loose as sand cut at its connection. After the confusion had subsided it was learned the Champlin Refining Company's No. 1 Nadea near the Stout had cut its top master gate. It was shut in immediately and new connection installed.

With no hope of taming the Stout before tomorrow noon, crews which had abandoned their task at the first cry of fire returned to the well and prepared to attempt to stab a great die nipple into place.

ONLY FOG CAN DELAY BIGGEST PLANE'S TRIP

Dr. Dornier Makes Last Check-up and Finds Giant Craft in Perfect Trim

AMSTERDAM FIRST GOAL

Flight Across Atlantic With 14 Will Be Undertaken Only After Landing Trial at Sea

By KARL H. VON WEIGAND

(Copyright, 1930, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Friedrichshafen, Nov. 1—"The Do-X is all clear."

Dr. Claude Dornier, builder of the giant 12 motored flying boat, made that terse statement tonight.

He had just returned from Altenrhein, Switzerland, where he personally made the last check-up on the world's largest heavier-than-air flying craft before the scheduled take-off for Amsterdam on the first leg of a flight to Lisbon and across the Atlantic to New York.

That check-up was followed by a final conference on the German side of Lake Constance, which included Dr. Dornier, Capt. Christian Christiansen and Pilots Horst Merz and Lieut. Charles Schildhauer.

On his arrival here tonight Dr. Dorner said:

"The start is now merely a question of weather."

The designer and builder of the DO-X is a man of few words and would say no more.

TWO OF CREW AMERICANS

From Altenrhein on Lake Constance to Amsterdam, where the landing will be made in the Zuyder Zee, there will be 14 crewmen and passengers aboard. Two of the crew, Lieut. Schildhauer and Harvey Brewton, are Americans. The list follows:

Commander Capt. Christiansen; Pilots Merz and Schildhauer; Navigator Wilhelm Niemann; Engineers Brewton and Otto Eitel; Wireless Operator Henry Fiel; Mechanics Herman Lang, Friedrich Schmiel, Ernst Brombeis, Emanuel Schyster, Heinrich Jaeger and Karl Bautz.

The only passenger aboard is Dr. Erich Tilgenkamp, editor of the Swiss Aero Review, representing the technical aviation press.

Capt. Christiansen is anxious to get the DO-X on the way to Amsterdam. He declared tonight:

"Everbody is in the highest spirits. We are all saying our little prayers, hoping that there will be no fog tomorrow to cause another delay."

ALL ANXIOUS TO FLY

Pilot Merz's young and pretty wife, who is but 20, scarcely left his side all day. Merz would say to everyone: "She is a brave little girl," and then continued:

"The only thing that could blanket our spirits would be that fog or low clouds tomorrow might hold us back."

Lieut. Schildhauer, who is well known in American aviation circles, asserted:

"These past four months have been most interesting for me, but I am glad we are to get off now and I am looking forward to seeing my wife and New York again."

No one seemed happier than Harvey Brewton, who supervised

"FEEDS NEEDY STATISTICS"

Walsh, Coolidge, Others Speak; Butler Defeat Predicted; G.O.P. Has Rallies, Too

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Coursing on the crest-wave of confidence, Joseph B. Ely whirled his way through Greater Boston last night, hammering at the weak spots in the Republican party.

From Roxbury to the Newtons, with a dozen rallies in between, the Democratic candidate for Governor brought his campaign to a virtual close.

He spiritedly attacked the Republican chiefs for gross incompetency in the unemployment crisis and with cowardly evasion of the other serious issues, notably prohibition.

"The people of Massachusetts are entitled to candor, at least from the candidates for public office who solicit their votes," declared Ely.

"They do not discuss prohibition, because they know, as Col. Eben S. Draper has so accurately said, their platform is a cowardly straddle.

"I ask the Governor of this Commonwealth, 'How do you stand on prohibition?' and he replies, 'O, I have built a few roads.'

FEEDS THEM STATISTICS

"I ask him, 'What have you done to relieve the suffering of the unemployed?' and he replies, 'O, I have built a few roads.'

"The fact is that the Republican leaders of Massachusetts had neither the foresight nor the kindly interest in the public's welfare to perceive the suffering which unemployment would bring.

"They made utterly no preparation for it. The state budget did not contain an additional penny or appropriation for unemployment relief.

"The 'work' which he says was been done for unemployment is entirely and solely the work which Massachusetts would do in an ordinary year and for which the people have paid heavily in gasoline taxes, automobile insurance taxes, high municipal taxes and the other indirect levies which have contributed to the cost of living.

"Unemployment can not be relieved by the formation of a commission on the eve of election to feed statistics to the unemployed."

"GOVERNOR GETS WRATHY"

Governor Allen's temper has become brittle under the strain of the campaign and the anxiety of its outcome, Ely said.

"I say to him, 'tell the public your attitude on the pending Elevated legislation,'" said Ely, "and he replies that I am a 'liar' or a 'demagogue.'

"I fear the governor is losing his good nature as a result of this campaign. The public does not want harsh language. It wants facts."

Fresh from the extraordinary receptions given him in western Massachusetts, Ely was received with the acclaim of tremendous rally audiences as he toured the Greater City on the wave of Democratic optimism.

COOLIDGE RAPS BUTLER

Meanwhile, a hundred orators joined in the whirlwind drive of 50 Democratic rallies and U. S. Sen. David I. Walsh radioed an address in which he likened Ely to the popular, aggressive "Billy" Russell and predicted a landslide victory for Marcus A. Coolidge, Senatorial nominee, and the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Coolidge, "the Coolidges aren't a talking people, you know"—toured the rallies, denouncing the record of William M. Butler as an opponent of human-welfare legislation and reviewing his attempts when agent for the Arkwright Club to secure repeal of the 48-hour laws.

John F. Fitzgerald, with the zest of a youngster, declared to audiences that the Republican party must accept the consequences

G. O. P. LOSSES FORECAST

Control of House and Gain in Senate Seats Claimed for Democrats

By FRASER EDWARDS
Universal Service

Washington, Nov. 1—All political signs indicate the return of a Democratic House and a cut in the Republican majority in the Senate at the congressional elections.

The Democrats, with everything in their favor that makes for a change in the political complexion of Congress—notably "hard times"—look for a sweep and hope for a landslide. The Republicans concede nothing except that the trend is against them.

WHITE HOUSE POSSIBILITIES

So closes a most unusual off-year campaign. Out of it will come the paramount issue—prohibition—in the presidential campaign of 1932.

Likewise, there may emerge several towering presidential possibilities in both parties—Morrow and Pinchot of the Republican, and Roosevelt, Ritchie, Bulkley and Robinson in the Democratic.

Out in Montana, where the folks have soured on prohibition, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, hero of Teapot Dome and one of the patriarchs of present-day Democracy, is having the battle of his long career because of his dry stand.

Ohio, the birthplace of the Anti-Saloon League, bids fair to furnish the most astonishing upset in the entire election. All polls and reports indicate that Robert J. Bulkley is going to run ahead of his dry Republican opponent.

In Massachusetts, William M. Butler, former senator and former chairman of the republican national commitee and friend of Calvin Coolidge, is running as a dry against Marcus A. Coolidge, a repealist, and reports indicate that the going is hard for Butler.

Little Rhode Island is "all wet" in the senatorial contest between Senator Metcalf, republican, and former Senator Goelet Gerry, Democrat.

NEW YORK CANDIDATES "WET"

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in New York, makes his bid for a place in the presidential sun two years hence in his race for a second term, against Charles H. Tuttle. Both stand for repeal of the dry amendment.

Dwight W. Morrow, former Morgan partner and ambassador to Mexico, completely dominates the situation in New Jersey with his personality and his forthright demand for repeal.

A crazy quilt covers the strangest set of political bedfellows ever assembled in Pennsylvania—or any other state. Republican leaders in wholesale lots, from the Vare ward leaders to General William Wallace Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, and Samuel Vauclain, have bolted the dry Gifford Pinchot, Republican candidate for governor and espoused the cause of John M. Hemphill, Democrat-Liberal repealist.

The fourth-term, instead of the third term, is the issue in Maryland. But it does not seem to be disturbing Governor Albert C. Ritchie, one of the original repealists, who is the only man in the state ever elected more than once.

Illinois has almost as many strange elements in the senatorial race as Pennsylvania has in the gubernatorial contest. Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick is conceded the down-state counties by a substantial margin, despite the third ticket headed by Mrs. Lottie O'Neill, dry. James Hamilton Lewis' repeal stand gives him the edge in Cook county in which Chicago is situated.

The Senate roster stands 56 Republicans, 39 Democrats and one Farmer-Labor, so it will be necessary for the Democrats to make a net gain of 10 to control the upper house. That is an admittedly difficult job and few Democrats are brash enough to claim it.

It is the house, however, that all managers are watching. For it is history that "hardtimes" have hit the majorities in the popular branch. The majority party was turned out in 1854, 1876, and 1894, following periods of business depression and there is every indication that history will repeat itself.

SEC. COOK "PASSING BUCK," SAYS O'BRIEN

Democratic nominee for secretary of the commonwealth Chester J. O'Brien in addressing rallies in the western part of the state yesterday said:

"My opponent, Mr. Cook, attempts to justify his abuse of his office by 'passing the buck' to his deputy in my charges of attempting to deliver the state to Mr. Hoover by his arrangement of the ballot in the presidential election of 1928."

As the Campaign Nears the End

THE BOSTON NEWS BUREAU, conservative and usually Republican, recommended yesterday the defeat of State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook and Fred J. Burrell, candidate for State Treasurer, both Republicans. It charged that Burrell, when treasurer, used the office to force banks to patronize his private advertising agency.

JOHN J. REAR ADMIRAL PHILIP ANDREWS, U. S. N., retired, put his feet into the political arena last night. JOSEPH J. BORGATTI of Somerville, Underhill's Democratic opponent, retaliated with the charge that Underhill has been "a reactionary all his life, voting and working against woman's suffrage, direct election of United States Senators and against almost every humane recommendation ever proposed by the American Federation of Labor."

JOHN P. BRENNAN of Cambridge, Democrat, saw his campaign against Congressman Dallinger enlivened by the voluntary formation of a Brennan-Republican committee of 100 members, mostly Republican business men.

JULIAN CODMAN, general counsel for the Constitutional Liberty League, in a statement issued to the voters last night urging the repeal of the Baby Volstead law, declared that the claims set up by the "drys" that repeal would be followed by an "Orgy of Lawlessness," has been exposed as a "wicked falsehood."

"No one," he said, "will be deceived by the trick."

CHARLES F. HURLEY, Democratic candidate for state treasurer, at rallies last night, offered to divide his radio time tonight with Fred J. Burrell, his Republican opponent, in an effort to get Burrell to discuss the issues of the campaign.

WILLIAM G. THOMPSON, Boston attorney, at rallies last night in Boston, urged the election of the Democratic candidate for attorney-general, Harold W. Sullivan. He described Sullivan as a "comparatively young man of sound education and considerable experience."

MAJ. JUDSON HANNIGAN over the radio last night attacked Joseph B. Ely, the Democratic candidate for Governor. He accused Ely of misrepresenting the record of Governor Allen and of attempting to discredit Allen's administration.

Gerry and Metcalf Rest After Campaign in Rhode Island for the Senatorship

Providence, R. I., Nov. 1—The hundred million dollar political battle between Peter Goelet Gerry and Jesse H. Metcalf ended tonight because both candidates for the U. S. Senatorship plan to take things easy on Monday.

Senator Metcalf, whose wealth is estimated to exceed 50 millions, seeks re-election with the well organized Republican machine behind him.

Gerry, scion of the Gerry and Goelet families of New York, inherited a fortune estimated at even more than that of Metcalf.

Theodore Francis Green, Democratic candidate for the Governorship, is the richest Democrat to be nominated since Civil War days. Although an active lawyer he enjoys a handsome income from a big estate left by his father.

There are 267,000 persons eligible to vote and political leaders are confident that 80 per cent of them will go to the voting booths on Tuesday.

GERRY BLAMES G. O. P.

Gerry has been waging his campaign on the unemployment issue.

He has blamed the G. O. P. for depression and has urged the voters to register their disapproval of the Hoover administration by voting for him. He also has advocated abolition of the national dry laws.

In his attack on Senator Metcalf he has accused the millionaire textile manufacturer of being unfair to labor and also of being hostile to the colored people, chiefly because of Metcalf's vote in favor of the appointment of Judge Parker to a place on the U. S. Supreme Court.

Senator Metcalf has countered by charging that Gerry is not a Rhode Islander and that he maintains a legal residence in this state merely to seek high office. He also has charged that Gerry has no money invested in Rhode Island industries and that, if elected, Gerry will line up with the Democrats of the South and vote for measures to favor industrial interests below the Mason Dixon line.

One of the best stump speakers in the Gerry camp has been Mrs. Gerry, who was the widow of the late George Vanderbilt.

Mrs. Gerry speaks French fluently and for months she has been addressing groups of French speaking voters in Woonsocket and other points in the Blackstone Valley.

QUITE A FEW "WETS"

Gerry, known for many years as a "wringing wet," was making capital of the issue that he was the only avowed opponent of prohibition. The G. O. P. platform, adopted a few weeks ago, pledged the candidates to obey the mandate of the people which would be expressed at a referendum on election day.

Metcalf gave political circles a surprise by announcing that he was personally in favor of abolition of the Eighteenth Amendment. A few days later Congressmen Clark Burdick and Richard S. Aldrich made similar announcements.

Although many of the drys were disappointed, most of them have expressed an intention of supporting Metcalf. Even the W. C. T. U. has indorsed his candidacy.

Indifference marked the campaign until a week ago. The speech made by Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York, coupled with intensive radio and advertising campaigns by Gerry and Metcalf enlivened the struggle.

The city campaign warmed up appreciably this week. Mayor James E. Dunne (Democrat), seeking a third term, is being hard pressed by his Republican rival, Dr. J. Henry Manning.

The most bitter fight of the campaign is being waged between Atty.-Gen. Benjamin M. McLyman (Republican), and John P. Hartigan (Democrat).

ALLEN FAILS IN JOBS CRISIS, CHARGE BY ELY

hard times and high taxes and that Republicans and Democrats will support Ely and Coolidge as "the apostles of changed and better times."

Mayor Curley, confined to his home by a severe attack of laryngitis accumulated while touring western Massachusetts for Ely and Coolidge, supervised the arrangements for a reception which the Tammany Club will give Ely tonight and assured his attendance there if Dr. "Marty" English will permit.

Senatorial Candidate Butler and Governor Allen confined their rally addresses chiefly to Brookline. Mr. Butler said that his record has been largely misrepresented by Coolidge and charged him with "unsportsmanlike failure to correct it."

TRANSCRIPT'S VIEW

Governor Allen predicted victory, said his administration has been characterized by humane endeavors to relieve the plight of the unfortunates and the unemployed and attacked Ely for dealing ungenerously with his record.

Those were the high-point, 11th-hour developments of a campaign that was begun with apathy, enlivened in its mid-hours by shots of mental aspirin and brought to a dramatic close with the Democrats claiming "It's a sweep," and the Republicans wondering if it were really true.

The Boston Transcript, intensely Republican, conceded the possibility of a sweep. Even with normal conditions it admitted that Coolidge has the lead over Butler, and expressed a belief that Allen was "safe."

The Boston News Bureau, conservative and usually Republican, demanded the defeat of State Auditor Alonzo B. Cook and of Fred J. Burrell, the Republican candidate for State treasurer. The News Bureau urged the election of the two Hurleys, especially "Charlie," State Treasurer candidate, without reservation.

In this election, the people of Massachusetts will choose one United States Senator, one Governor, 16 Congressmen, all the state officers and legislators and a host of county officials.

They will vote, too, on four referenda of state-wide import, ranging from repeal of the State Volstead act to public ownership of the Boston Elevated, the latter in Boston and the 13 cities and towns of the Metropolitan area.

EYES ON BAY STATE

Every election is "the most important of all elections," the pols say, but it is a fact that the nation manifests a considerable interest in the Massachusetts outcomes.

"Will Massachusetts, an industrial state, respond to the protests of unrest that are heard elsewhere throughout the country?" is the question asked by the national leaders from President Hoover to Jouett Shouse of the Democratic national committee.

The Democrats see visions of capturing the House and entrenching their forces in the Senate and they look upon Massachusetts as a fertile field in view of "Al" Smith's and David I. Walsh's spectacular victories two years ago and of Congressman Granfield's extraordinary victory in the recent bye-election.

Frances E. Slattery whaled away at prohibition over the radio last night, declaring that the "public conscience" of Massachusetts rebels at the prolongation of "the prohibition evils," while the dry forces temporarily rested on oars, presumably in contemplation of the pulpit oratory tomorrow.

Speaking, he said, for the labor movement, John J. Kearney flayed Butler as an indefatigable and unrelenting foe of organized labor's human-welfare program.

FOUR SILENT LEADERS

Conrad Crooker announced that the Liberal Civic League, after an intimate survey of the candidates' records, decided unreservedly to indorse Ely and Coolidge. The former, said the League, "is a fighter and a square-shooter." The League announcement quoted Governor Allen as having said:

"I have bought more liquor for the use of my friends than almost any man you have ever met."

William S. Youngman, lieutenant-governor and candidate for re-election, was classified by the League as "personally wet, but politically dry."

Everybody of prominence seemed to be especially busy for their respective tickets, with these four notable exceptions:

Col. Eben S. Draper, who renounced the Republican party platform "straddle" on prohibition and who, it is believed, will have something to say tomorrow that will not be received with acclaim by the Republican candidates.

Congressman George Holden Tinkham, conspicuously wet, who is running a campaign of his own for re-election and letting the Republican dry candidates for senator and governor severely alone.

Former Governor Alvan T. Fuller conspicuously dry, has thus far refrained from advocating the election of either Mr. Butler or Mr. Allen.

Charles H. Innes, familiarly dubbed the "Republican boss of Boston," whose presence in the campaign, if he is present, has not been appreciably noticeable.

BUTLER CHANGES AIDES

Reports of internicine struggles within the Republican party, which all formally deny, trickled through the "wise circles" of inside politics throughout the night. Butler has taken unto himself a new campaign manager in the closing hours, in the person of former Senator Cavanagh, it was said, while the Allen forces were determined to work until Tuesday on their own, in view of Butler's weakness.

Rumblings of a breaking-away to Allen were heard here and there, but there was an optimistic belief that these defections had been more than overcome by Governor Smith's full-hearted appeal for "my reliable friend, Joseph B. Ely.

Ely, it was conceded, will run perhaps with more force outside of Boston than any Democrat since the days of "Billy" Russell. If Boston will give him a majority of but 45,000, he will win, according to his friends. It seems to them to be a modest request, in view of the fact that Messrs. Smith and Walsh romped through the city with a lead of 100,000.

King of Abyssinia, on Eve of Coronation Ceremony, Unveils statue to Menelik II

Addis Ababa, Nov. 1 (INS)—In a wild and colorful setting, Ras Tafari, "King of Kings" and Emperor of Abyssinia, today presided over the first of the ceremonies in connection with his coronation as Emperor of the Black Kingdom.

This ceremony was the unveiling of a gigantic statue of Emperor Menelik II, great uncle of Ras Tafari and national hero of Abyssinia, who died in 1913.

The ceremony took place in the square of St. George's Cathedral in the center of Addis Ababa, where the statue was erected.

The Emperor, attended by princes of the realm, members of his government and tribal chiefs, and in the presence of delegates from foreign countries, received the acclaim of 250,000 of his subjects when he appeared for the unveiling.

The scene in the immediate vicinity of the veiled statue was one of unparalleled magnificence.

IN GEORGEOUS ROBES

The Emperor, appearing rather diminutive beneath the folds of a long purple cape, encrusted with gold and lined with green and red silk, was seated on a magnificent throne which rested on almost priceless rugs. An array of glittering medals was strung across the breast of his tunic.

Immediately surrounding the emperor were his ministers of state, all magnificently attired, in sharp contrast to the sombre garb of the clergy, who formed the next tier, their dark clothes and black hoods a line of demarcation between the emperor's retinue and the score of tribal chiefs attired in war regalia.

The foreign delegates headed by the Duke of Gloucester, King George's representative; Prince Udine of Italy and Special Ambassador Herman Murray Jacoby of the United States, all wearing full dress, were accorded special places of vantage.

In the background were gathered virtually the entire population of the Abyssinian capital and more than 200,000 tribesmen from all parts of the empire, some mounted, some afoot, but all or mostly all, dressed in flowing white robes.

The city was a riot of color, with gaily striped bunting, flags of nearly all nations of the world, and thousands of tents of the nomads encamped at the edge of the city.

KING IN LONG PRAYER

Prior to the unveiling, the Emperor held a review of the wild mounted tribesmen. While foreign visitors gasped at the horsemanship, hundreds of these nomads, carrying guns or spears and shouting barbaric war cries, galloped up to the troop-lined square where the Emperor and his official guests were seated.

Wheeling their mounts only at the last moment, when it appeared they must crash through the unflinching line of soldiery guarding the square, the tribesmen saluted their Emperor and King and charged back to their encampment.

Following this review Ras Tafari walked slowly from his throne to the foot of the monument, and while trumpets blared and troops stood stiffly at salute, he pulled the silken cord which dropped the shroud from the statue and revealed to an admiring audience a gilt Menelik II mounted on a prancing Abyssinian steed.

Following the unveiling Ras Tafari and his Queen retired to the sanctuary of St. George's Cathedral, there to remain in continuous prayer and meditation until dawn when the coronation ceremonies commence.

Senator Walsh Predicts Big Democratic Sweep Tuesday

ELY-COOLIDGE VICTORY FEARED BY G.O.P. HEADS

Split on Dry Issue and Business Depression Figure in Chance of Turnover

CAMPAIGN IS CLOSE

Ely Claims Western Part of State by Plurality of 10,000 With 70,000 More in Boston

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Senator David I. Walsh declared last night that the Democratic party would sweep the country Tuesday's national elections.

That opinion is generally held in this state and is reluctantly conceded by the most astute observers within the Republican party.

Joseph B. Ely and Marcus A. Coolidge and other Democratic candidates began campaigning under the most auspicious conditions ever enjoyed by the party in this state, at least in this generation.

The Republicans were split on Prohibition. William M. Butler, senatorial nominee, polled less votes than the combined total of his two opponents, Eben S. Draper and "Bossy" Gillis.

The efforts of the party steering committee to win back these Republican men and women who voted "wet" as a matter of principle has been on the whole a failure.

DRAPER'S BOLT

Draper himself denounced the party platform as a "straddle," and later attended the big anti-prohibition rally in Symphony Hall as a platform guest. Many of the speakers on that occasion were prominent lifelong Republicans.

When the meeting was over Draper stated to the writer that he was glad to be on the platform in the interest of "that worthy cause"—repeal.

It showed that he was going through to the end. His decision without doubt has had a tremendous significance upon the 150,000 voters who favored his candidacy in the primary.

Then there was the definite split between the young wing of the party and the so-called "Old Guard." On the surface this breach has been healed, but the fight underneath still rages on.

LIGGETT SILENT

While the national committeewoman, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, has taken a prominent part in the campaign activities, it is signifant that her colleague, Louis K. Liggett, has not been heard over the radio nor been seen on the rally platforms.

Liggett has been quoted as having said that a "wet" could not be nominated and a "dry" could not be elected.

The depression of business and the resultant wide-spread unemployment have also contributed largely to the defections from the Republican party. Prosperity and the "full dinner pail" are no longer synonymous with Republicanism and general dissatisfaction has been displayed with the administration.

On the other hand, the contests in the Democratic primary, having been between individuals and not over issues, disappeared quickly as the campaign got underway. The leaders have become united as never before. Senator Walsh and Mayor Curley took the stump and added their influence to the campaign.

ELY-ALLEN BATTLE CLOSE

As the campaign has progressed the popularity of the Democratic cause has been clearly indicated, with Coolidge apparently far in the lead over William M. Butler. The battle between Joseph B. Ely and Governor Allen is conceded to be close. Coolidge, however, proved to be a disappointment to his friends on the stump and upon Ely has devolved the oratorical burden.

Ely has met this responsibility and conducted an aggressive campaign which has won over many Republicans to his support. Especially is this true in the western part of the state, his home section where the biggest crowds ever have turned out to here a Democratic candidate have given him ovation after ovation.

The western tour, together with the special appeal of former Governor "Al" Smith for the election of his friend and supporter at the two last Democratic national conventions, have given tremendous impetus to the Westfield man's candidacy.

While Butler's candidacy has made strides, observers do not believe his gains are sufficient to offset Coolidge's lead.

LIGHT VOTE EXPECTED

All of which indicates that the prediction of Senator Walsh that the Democratic party is sweeping the country appears to be true in Massachusetts.

Leaders in both parties are not banking on a heavy vote. It is expected that not more than 1,200,000 voters will go to the polls next Tuesday. In the presidential election two years ago 1,609,958 votes were cast.

Senator Walsh received 818,055 votes to 693,563 for B. Loring Young. Walsh's plurality was 124,492. In Boston the same year, Walsh got 189,779 to Young's 75,773. The plurality of Walsh in Boston was 114,006.

Allen's vote outside Boston this year, is expected to be cut materially by his Democratic opponent from Westfield. Ely has been claiming a majority of 30,000 votes in the four Republican western counties.

New Isolation Ward Being Built for Convalescent Home

Child Patients Make Merry at Wellesley Hills Hospital

Francis, a Veteran Patient, Is a Favorite of the Nurses

By KATHERINE BROOKS

YOU would never take Francis for a sick baby. Yet not so very long ago he was so thin and underweight that he had to be sent to the hospital.

Now his little eyes sparkle, his tiny back is straight and strong, his baby arms and legs are rosy and well rounded. That is what the Convalescent Home at Wellesley Hills has done for Francis.

The ward in which he received visitors is a new feature of the home. It was opened last June, and Francis was one of its first patients. He is now seven or eight months old, and such a favorite that the nurses do not want to let him go.

A Luxury for Francis

When they undress Francis to weigh him (and he is gaining every day) they take off, among other things, a pair of cuffs that fit snugly over his dimpled elbows. These prevent him from bending his arm, and therefore, from sucking his thumb.

The only time Francis can enjoy that luxury is when he is in the baby scales. So being weighed has its compensations.

The home has many unusual and interesting features. A new isolation ward is being built, long needed for children with infectious diseases. Although the home does not take contagious cases, they sometimes develop after children have been admitted.

Certain children, also, need rest and quiet. These can be cared for in one of the isolation rooms, away from the friendly bustle of the big wards and playroom.

The moment a visitor enters the home he hears children's voices in happy talk and laughter. They do not sound a bit like "patients."

It is a surprise to find them with bodily ailments, many of them crippled by infantile paralysis, some lying on little three-wheeled cots, which they propel with their arms

Big Indoor Playroom

Both boys and girls display remarkable skill in manipulating these vehicles. They travel at high speed, back, turn and "park" without ever a collision. When two youngsters want to have a chat they range their cots side by side as casually as two well children would sit down together.

There is a big indoor playroom, used in bad weather, and an outdoor space, paved with concrete, where the little convalescents lie or run about when the sun shines. Old Sol himself is an important factor in every cure.

In the Weld Solarium, for example, children receive sun treatment all the year around, even in winter lying for a short time daily in the open air, dressed only in bloomers. For dull days, when Old Sol retires from view, there is the lamp room, where children receive ray treatment.

There is a schoolroom, attended by children well enough to study, in charge of competent teachers. In this way they can keep up with their schooling.

Receives No Support

The official name of this institution is the Convalescent Home of the Children's Hospital of Boston. It receives cases from that hospital, but does not receive support from it. The home is maintained entirely by bequests and voluntary contributions.

The cases admitted are those of children who have passed the acute stage and are convalescent. They need skilled care, but owing to the great demands on the Children's Hospital, are discharged to make way for other patients.

The home cares for them until they are well enough to go home. If a child's trouble proves to be chronic, it is then referred to some other institution.

Those who can afford to pay do so. Those who cannot, are treated free.

FITZGERALD HITS ALLEN ABOUT 'L'

Governor's Silence on Referendum Should Defeat Him, Says Ex-Mayor

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, at rallies in Rockland, Winchester, Arlington, Revere and Chelsea, last night contended that Governor Allen has taken President Coolidge's advice "that issues are not to be discussed," when he refuses to discuss the disposition of the Boston Elevated property, a question that is to be decided on the ballot next Tuesday.

Fitzgerald pointed out that the Governor has been familiar with the subject ever since he voted to have the state step in in 1916, and owes a duty to the public to give a word of advice.

"If there is any one thing that more than another should defeat Governor Allen it is his position on this matter," Fitzgerald declared.

MOTHER'S LOVE OUTWITS COURT

Begs Custody of Child Overnight and Slips Out of State With Her

The wit of a mother, desperate for the custody of her 10-year-old daughter, left a chagrined deputy sheriff and Middlesex court in its wake Thursday, it was learned last night.

Without benefit of court order, Mrs. Elizabeth K. Attridge, who came from Peoria, Ill., to Pepperell to claim her daughter, Jane, took the child away Wednesday night—out of sight but still in charge of Deputy Sheriff Fillebrown of Ayer.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Kennedy of Pepperell, parents of Mrs. Attridge, refused to surrender the child before a writ of habeas corpus for her court appearance was issued and served by Fillebrown. The child was taken to Cambridge Wednesday.

The writ, issued Tuesday by Judge Charles N. Harris, was not returnable until Thursday and the mother grasped the opportunity of keeping the child with her overnight. Permission was granted by Deputy Sheriff Fillebrown with the understanding that the two appear the next morning.

Wednesday night, Mrs. Attridge sent a note to her counsel, stating that she had to leave for Peoria immediately on account of the "illness of her husband." She was divorced four years ago.

By the time the note was delivered she had entrained and was well beyond the jurisdiction of Massachusetts.

That her claim on the child was assured was disclosed in court records, showing she had been given custody at the time of the divorce, but she did not wait to see.

GENERAL COLE IS FOR PUBLIC OWNING 'EL'

Speaking as Individual Trustee, He Tells Why He Favors Buying Trolley System

Gen. Charles H. Cole, one of the five trustees of the Boston Elevated, told the Boston Sunday Advertiser last night that he favors public ownership of the system.

"Speaking as an individual trustee and not for the board," said Gen. Cole, "I feel that the voters are entitled to know what my personal views are after two years of observation.

"I am not advocating public ownership of public utilities as a general principle. I do not believe in that principle, except when the state or political subdivisions cannot get proper service at a proper price.

"I am advocating public ownership of the Boston Elevated Railway company whether by the State or by the Metropolitan District on the grounds that public necessity and convenience demand additional rapid transit facilities.

"NECESSITY RIDING"

"We must take care of the necessity riding which is increasing from year to year and causing constantly growing congestion, and the time-wasting surface delays at Cottage Farm Bridge, Harvard st., Boylston st., Huntington ave., Brookline Village, Massachusetts ave., Tremont st. and in Chelsea and Revere.

"By 'necessity riding' I refer to the working men and women whose means allow them no other mode of transportation to and from their work and who are the very life-blood of our business, our industries and our manufactures.

"This 'necessity riding' has increased every year since the 10-cent fare was put into effect, 11 years ago, and particularly on the rapid transit lines. That these additions to our transit system are needed is testified to by the reports of every committee of the Legislature during the past six years.

CALLS IT A BARGAIN

"I am for public ownership because this is the only plan of the three offered which will give these vitally needed additions without any increase in car fare or any increase to the taxpayers of the district.

"I am for public ownership because it is a splendid business proposition. The state now holds an option to buy the Elevated for the cash actually paid in on the stocks and bonds of the company.

"This is a bargain: the state can buy for $100,000,000 a rapid transit system which has been thoroughly modernized as to power, equipment, rolling stock, tracks and safety devices, which has an efficient, well-developed and well-paid organization of employes, which cost approximately $175,000,000 of which the public now owns about $62,000,000, leaving $113,000,000 as the cost of the part owned by the Elevated.

"This property which can be bought for $100,000,000 has been appraised by the State's own board of the Department of Public Utilities to be worth $119,000,000.

ANNUAL SAVING OF $1,500,000

"While the car riders now pay $6,000,000 annually in carrying charges, represented by the six, seven and eight per cent dividends on the stock, the high rate of interest on the bonds and the federal income tax, with public credit behind it in the form of low rate bonds, and the saving of the federal income tax, it will only cost at 4½ per cent $1,500,000, at once, an immediate saving of $1,500,000 every year at an ultimate saving of $1,750,000 a year, when all the bonds are taken up.

"I am for public ownership, because I believe a bill can be drawn embodying all the good points of the present public control bill, appointments of a board of trustees, four by the Governor and one by the mayor; long terms for the appointees, responsibility solely to the Governor, service at cost, transfer of all officers and employes to the civil service for their protection, at present pay and additional construction to be only with the approval of the Department of Public Utilities."

Favors Plan 3

GEN. CHARLES H. COLE, one of the five trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway. He favors public ownership of the road.

MARY CURLEY TO SPONSOR FERRY

Will Christen General William H. Sumner at Launching Thursday

Miss Mary Curley, daughter of Mayor Curley, will be official sponsor for the new ferryboat, General William H. Sumner and will christen the vessel just before it is launched at the Fore River plant of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation next Thursday morning.

The vessel will bear the name of one of Boston's most distinguished citizens and soldiers.

The ceremony will start at 9:45 o'clock and at the request of Mayor Curley, all residents of Boston who desire to attend the launching will be admitted to the shipyard without tickets.

The General Sumner is 174 feet 4 inches in length, 57 feet breadth over guards, 40 feet 8 inches molded breadth, 16 feet 10 inches depth of hull amidships, and has a displacement of 820 tons at a molded draft of 10 feet 2 inches.

The vessel has two propellers, one at either end, and is equipped with two Scotch single end marine boilers with a working pressure of 180 pounds. A 150-gallon turbine driven centrifugal fire pump is installed in the engine room and two nozzles are located on the upper deck. The keel of the vessel was laid on August 11 last, and it is expected that it will go into service before Christmas.

General Sumner, after whom the ferry will be named, fortified Noddle Island, East Boston, during the War of 1812 and commanded the forces stationed there for the defence of Boston.

CLIVE TO DRAW CURTAIN UPON COPLEY PLAYS

Theater to Close Next Saturday Night Owing to Financial Losses, He Says

Out of the laughter his antics as Ogg, in "The Middle Watch," had just created in his theater last night E. E. Clive stepped quickly to his office to play the central character of a real life drama.

His comedy mask as Ogg dropped away and he grimly announced to a Boston Sunday Advertiser reporter that next Saturday night he would draw the final curtain upon his Copley Theater project because of financial losses due to waning patronage.

"I am personally out of pocket," he said with sardonic smile, "the sum of just $38,000."

Then, thinking of the humiliation of defeat in his pet and once prosperous enterprise, which has given Boston some excellent plays during its seven years, Mr. Clive added:

"This is, of course, a great blow to me. But I am brave—I am going to pay every creditor of mine every cent I owe him. I have my health and my courage. Thank God for that! I shall even sell bonds if I have to. But I shall come clean at the end."

Mr. Clive said he blamed the business depression, free fireworks displays and public concerts, miniature golf courses, and the lack of good clean plays for the death of his theater.

NOONE'S FIGHT FOR TWO POSTS STIRS STATE

New Hampshire Watching for Outcome of "Uncle Hi's" Election Contest

RACING KEYES FOR SENATE

Also Opposing John G. Winant, G. O. P. Candidate, in Bitter Struggle for Governorship

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 1—There is more than usual interest in the election here Tuesday owing to the fact that Albert W. Noone of Peterborough, Democratic candidate for governor, is also the party's choice for the U. S. Senate against Senator Henry W. Keyes.

Former Governor John G. Winant is again the Republican party's choice for governor.

"UNCLE HI" IS A WET

Political observers give Winant the edge over Noone, despite the fact that "Uncle Hi" is wet, and will get most of his support in the cities. The Winant organization figures on picking up support from dry Democrats.

Noone has made no speeches. He believes he can further his campaign by newspaper advertisements and a strong party organization. His aides, Maj. Edward Gallagher of Laconia, a firm believer in campaigning through the printed word, and Maj. A. Erling Goyette of Peterborough, as well as Robert Gould, Newport hotel man, who is chairman of the Democratic state committee, have whipped into shape one of the most powerful organizations Democrats in New Hampshire ever had.

HARD WORK FOR KEYES

Senator Keyes, who has been ill, has not been able to make a personal appeal to the voters, but he has an organization that has been doing some hard work for him.

Winant believes he has convinced the voters that he should have another term to complete the work he started when governor, 1925-1927. Benjamin F. Worcester of Manchester, Republican state chairman, is confident that Winant will win.

In the First Congressional District, Fletcher Hale, Republican, of Laconia, is seeking reelection. His Democratic opponent is Napoleon Dyer, also of Laconia.

In the Second Congressional District, Congressman Edward H. Wason, Republican, is being opposed by former Mayor Eaton D. Sargent of Nashua, Democrat.

Voters will pass upon five amendments to the constitution of the State. The first provides for absentee voting at biennial elections, the second, for an estate tax; the third gives the governor more veto powers in dealing with appropriations, the fourth concerns income tax exemptions and the the fifth would reduce the size of the New Hampshire House of Representatives.

HOOVER OPENS NEW DETROIT TUNNEL

Washington, Nov. 1 (INS)—President Hoover touched a telegraph key in the wire room of the White House at 11:30 o'clock today and formally opened the new $25,000,000 vehicular tunnel running under the Detroit river between Detroit and Windsor, Canada.

Especial significance was attached to the event, this being the only tunnel in the world connecting two countries.

"Miss Roxbury"

ALTHOUGH THE CUP Miss Katherine J. Carr won as "Miss Roxbury" at the Halloween party in Intercolonial Hall was stolen, she was given another cup yesterday.

THIEF GETS CUP THAT BEAUTY WON

Sen. Mulhern's Presentation Speech Goes for Naught After Roxbury Party

"And now," said Senator Joseph J. Mulhern, "I take great pleasure, Miss Carr, in presenting this cup to you."

He turned and reached for the cup and where the cup had been a minute before, it was not. It had been stolen.

So Miss Katherine J. Carr of Washington st., Roxbury, who won the title "Miss Roxbury of 1930" at the Halloween party and dance of the William J. Wallace Association at Intercolonial Hall, didn't get her cup until yesterday. The association bought her a new one.

Senator Mulhern, City Councilman Frank Kelly and Rep. John E. Hurley were the judges.

VOTING LIGHT IN CUBAN ELECTION

Balloting for Congressional Seats Ends Without Sign of Disorder

Havana, Nov. 1 (AP)—Cuba's Congressional election day came to a close here tonight without disorders, but with voting light and many polling places failing to open.

In nearly all parts of the island, the voting was light, and particularly was this true in Havana, though it had been expected there would be a heavy descent on the polling stations.

In the suburb of Marianao, well-known pleasure resort with a population of 50,000, it was reported that only 520 votes had been cast. President Machado, after casting his own vote for the Liberal ticket, personally visited a number of polling places in Havana and its suburbs to learn how heavy was the voting.

Announcement was made that the names of the 24 successful candidates among the three competing parties, Liberals, Conservatives and Populars, for the House of Representatives, and of the 18 Senators, might be made public within 24 hours.

JOBLESS 'REDS' BATTLE POLICE

Mob Charges Brooklyn Municipal Building After Unemployment Rally

New York, Nov. 1 (INS)—Communists charged the steps of the municipal building in Brooklyn today at the climax of an unemployment demonstration, and precipitated a brief but severe free-for-all fight before they were driven back by 40 policemen.

The demonstrators withdrew, several with bleeding noses, and the two leaders, a man a woman escaped.

The communists had met at Borough Hall, and demonstrated for an hour with speeches, and placards reading, "give us work," "vote communist," and "we want work for the unemployed."

Suddenly a speaker shouted, "now let us unseat those grafters who will not give their money to the unemployed," and started a march upon the municipal building.

CURLEY FORCED TO QUIT CAMPAIGN

Bronchitis and Laryngitis to Keep Him at Home Several Days

Mayor James M. Curley may be confined to his home for several days, his physician, Dr. Martin English, announced last night.

The mayor is suffering from bronchitis and a touch of laryngitis, Dr. English said.

Feeling that the mayor's condition would be aggravated by public speaking, Dr. English said he told the mayor that his advice was to cancel engagements until a great improvement is shown.

50-CENT ALL-DAY RIDE FOR CHILDREN

Beginning today, children between the ages of 9 and 12 years may ride all over the Eastern Mass. Street Railway system for 50 cents on tickets that will be good only on day of issue. For more than two years the street railway has had in effect a $1 Ride All Day Ticket and has permitted children under 12 years of age to ride for 50 cents when accompanied by an adult. This restriction has now been removed.

Here's Our Answer to

PRESIDENT HOOVER
GOVERNOR ALLEN
MAYOR CURLEY

on Business Depression!

While Others Talk "Pessimism" and Cry "Hysteria" We Are Marching Forward, as Witness These Outstanding Facts—

What We DID Do!

¶ Increased our personnel this year by nearly 40%.

¶ Opened 2 new stores in New England during the past year.

¶ Increased the total floor space of our stores to 44,000 square feet—making Scott Furriers by far the largest institution of its kind in the east.

¶ Spent thousands of dollars in the past year for new equipment such as: a fleet of delivery cars, fresh air system, tabulating, bookkeeping, carrier, and cashier machines to better serve the women of New England.

¶ Sympathized with and helped many of our customers and employees in some of their present difficulties.

¶ Helped manufacturers with whom we do business by paying our bills before they became due.

What We DID NOT Do!

¶ We did not discharge any employees this year when conditions became uncertain and people talked "Pessimism."

¶ We have not and do not intend reducing salaries.

¶ In spite of the so-called "Depression," we did not curtail our advertising.

¶ We did not become panicky, nor did we stop buying. On the contrary, our buyers went into the markets with definite purchasing instructions in order to maintain a good size stock of rapidly selling, seasonable merchandise.

¶ We did not act and talk "Pessimism" to any of our friends and to those with whom we do business.

¶ We did not lose faith in the present and future of the United States.

Who Said "Slump"!

Who said business "depression"! Not for Scott Furriers, who were always optimistic. Not for an organization which yesterday planned for Today, and Today is merchandising for Tomorrow! Not for an institution which is reaping today the optimist's reward of increased business—the largest in our history!

Like the spark of an ideal which, zealously guarded and nurtured through the years, forces an industry to the front in its field—such is the amazing story of Scott Furriers. Originators of the famous Scott Unique Fur Club, the only one of its kind, recognized as the easiest, fairest and most economical payment arrangement ever devised—the roster of Scott Furriers' customers extends throughout the United States and in distant parts of the world.

We believe that if leaders in industry, finance and labor were more optimistic and had more faith in the future, the return to normalcy and prosperity would be hastened.

ALLEN, YOUNGMAN "EXPOSED" BY CIVIC LEAGUE SURVEYORS

JOSEPH B. ELY, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, was described in a formal statement issued last night by the Liberal Civic League, as a "gallant Democratic fighter of the 'Billy' Russell type" and a "square shooter."

It was the league's first summary of the major candidates.

The league has this to say of Gov. Frank G. Allen, Ely's opponent:

"Claims to be a total abstainer, but he said that: 'I have bought more liquor for the use of my friends than almost any man you have ever met.'"

The league's comment on William S. Youngman, Republican, who seeks re-election, was:

"Personally very wet, politically bone dry."

Miss Lena Pasquette, 40, and Irene Levesque, both of Fall River, and Sidney Peckham, 13, of Westford, Vt. The latter was fatally wounded by a rifle in the hands of his brother, Ellsworth, 16.

At Worcester, Barbara Buchyn, 5, was reported dying in Memorial Hospital from burns. Her dress took fire from a Jack O'Lantern. Her mother, Mrs. Harriett Buchyn, and Edward A. Leonard, were slightly burned extinguishing the flames.

BUTLER HURLS 'LIE' IN FIGHT UPON COOLIDGE

Charges Democratic Foe Uses Falsehoods and Unfair Tactics in Senate Race

CITES HIS LABOR RECORD

He and Allen Are Chief Speakers at Big Brookline Rally

A radio plea to the voters to "discriminate between sound arguments and malicious falsehoods" was made by William M. Butler yesterday, featuring the closing stages of his senate contest.

Mr. Butler accused Marcus A. Coolidge, his Democratic opponent, of not investigating facts, and of refusing to acknowledge misrepresentations when the record shows them.

He held that if Mr. Coolidge were elected, he would be "the tool of the Southern Democrats" and an opponent of proper tariff protection for Massachusetts industries.

Mr. Butler said:

"My opponent states that I have the blackest record of any man in public life on labor questions; that I have been consistently opposed to every proposal for humane and progressive legislation to benefit the working people.

CITES HIS RECORD

"In order that every one may be informed, I state the record and the facts. I voted in the Massachusetts Legislature for the first bill to reduce the hours of labor for women and children in industry from 60 hours to 58 hours a week, and it has been followed by other reductions, until now we have the 48-hour week for women and children in Massachusetts.

"I also voted for a bill to protect employes of labor unions from intimidation.

"I introduced a bill in the Legislature to license engineers of steam boilers and for the careful inspection to insure safety. This was a bill of great importance to labor.

"I voted on two occasions for a bill friendly to railway employes relating to shorter hours. I acted for the labor leaders in the preparation of the Weavers' Fines Bill, and aided in its passage.

"While in the Senate I voted to abolish the Railroad Labor Board and to provide for a method of conciliation and arbitration in labor disputes,' and for collective bargaining. This was a bill of great importance to labor. It became a law and has met with satisfactory results.

BUTLER HITS SOUTHERNERS

Governor Allen and Butler got an enthusiastic reception at the main rally last night in Brookline Town Hall. Both were cheered by the audience of about 500 for several minutes.

Butler contended the Democrats of the South, free traders opposed to a protective tariff, controlled the party policies through the caucus at Washington. Every Democrat going into the caucus, he said, was bound by its decisions.

On the other hand, he said, the Republican party offers a "wise administration of government, both state and national, thrift, a sound financial policy, and that great principle of protective tariff which is the keystone of the Commonwealth's arch of industrial achievement."

An interested spectator at the rally was William H. McDonnell, associate judge of the Charlestown district court. McDonnell, a resident of South Boston and a Democrat, was elevated to the bench by Governor Allen while serving as an assistant district attorney.

ON RADIO TODAY

Governor Allen declared the law state tax, the reduction of the state debt and other savings have lifted the burdens of taxation and the cost of government from the people.

Governor Allen and Butler will spend today in comparative quietness, resting for the final lap drive before the votes are counted.

The Governor will attend one rally this afternoon in Lowell and in the evening will speak over the radio from 6:04 to 6:15 o'clock from Station WBZ and WBZA.

Other speakers at the Lowell meeting will be Senator Felix Hebert of Rhode Island, Congressman Edith N. Rogers and Atty. Gen. Joseph E. Warner.

Butler will attend no rallies but will speak from Stations WBZ and WBZA tonight from 7:15 to 7:30 o'clock. He will be preceded by Mrs. Butler and by the retiring senior senator from Massachusetts, Frederick H. Gillett.

BROWN ACCEPTS NEW SCHOLARSHIP

Providence, R. I., Nov. 1 (AP)—The gift of a principal sum of $10,000, the income from which is to be used for a scholarship at Brown University in memory of the late Prof. Kendall Kerfoot Smith, has been accepted by the Brown corporation, it was announced tonight.

BIG CALIFORNIA BRUSH FIRES OUT

Los Angeles, Nov. 1 (AP)—Brush fires, which have swept upwards of 50 square miles of valuable watersheds this week in Ventura and Los Angeles counties, were either officially out or under such control as warranted withdrawal of many of the hundreds of fire fighters late today.

economists on Thursday to further his plan for a national organization to cope with such emergencies.

Good news came from Fall River, Springfield and Palmer in orders that will provide some work there.

FULL TIME FOR 850

The Firestone Cotton Mills of Fall River announced full operation tomorrow giving employment again to 850 persons. The American Rug Works at Palmer announced the leasing of space to start operations soon and Postmaster James P. Smith of Springfield announced work for the Christmas rush in his department.

Thursday and Friday have been designated for registration of jobless in Worcester by a committee headed by Dr. Homer Gage. Another committee of business men was formed to find jobs.

Newton promised a job for every unemployed man in the city with plans for a $1,400,000 building program. Registration for applicants will open Wednesday in City Hall annex.

Mayor Patrick J. Duane of Waltham called a meeting of bankers, business men and other employers for tomorrow night at City Hall to formulate plans for relief in his city. They will co-operate with Governor Allen's committee, he said.

The Malden police yesterday voted to contribute $1 a month from their salaries for the Chamber of Commerce fund in that city for the relief of unemployed.

the installation of the 12 big Curtiss conqueror engines and who will be their "chief" on the flight. He said:

"Joseph Gody, the representative of the Wright people, and I today went over the engines again, almost with a microscope. They are running as smooth as velvet."

It is planned to keep all 12 motors functioning but so well throttled that none of them will be subject to any strain, rather than have three or four idle, while others are pounding away at higher revolutions. It was found that the force of the wind revolved the idle propellers anyway, thereby turning over the engines.

TUNED TO THE SECOND

Probably no plane which ever started toward an Atlantic flight has been more carefully prepared than this truly spectacular craft. Chief technical director Burner of the Dornier works said:

"Technical science has done everything that we know and can do to make the DO-X perfect for this undertaking."

Dr. Dornier will be present in a motorboat on Lake Constance when the DO-X takes off and then with his wife will board the train for Amsterdam, joining his crewmen there on Monday.

Capt. Christiansen plans to circle over Lake Constance for an hour to give the engineers another chance to check every detail, meanwhile gaining altitude to 6,500 feet with the 46 tons to be carried by the gigantic 151 foot wings.

The DO-X will then be pointed for Schaffhausen, fly over the Black Forest to Karlsruhe, and thence up the historic Rhine, past Frankfort, Wiesbaden, Bingen, Coblentz and Cologne.

All of Friedrichshafen, Constance, Romanshorn and other towns on the Swiss and German side of the lake will be up to see the DO-X start, and quite appropriate ceremonies are planned.

Escorted for a short distance by the majestic Graf Zeppelin, famous globe circling dirigible and veteran of seven transatlantic flights, the DO-X will turn, after it reaches its selected altitude, and bow toward Schaffhausen.

With a graceful salute of three dips of the bow, the Graf will turn and head for Chemnitz.

New Provisional President Who Led Revolt in Agreement With Military Leader

Rio De Janeiro, Nov. 1 (AP)—Dr. Getulio Vargas, commander-in-chief of Brazil's successful revolutionists, announced this evening that he would take office as provisional president of the country Monday afternoon.

His first official act will be to dissolve Congress. He said that owing to the present political situation in the country he would assume the presidency "with discretionary powers."

His announcement followed consultations with the northern insurgent military leader, Capt. Juarez Tavora, and officers of the military junta in the capital.

The junta probably will be abolished within 48 hours.

More rebel troops reached Rio today from Minas Geraes, Sao Paulo and Rio Grande Do Sul. The police here have been very active against communists, who are charged with being responsible for the police revolt and street fighting on Oct. 27.

It was understood tonight that all banks would resume exchange operations Monday. A rate for the milreis lower than 1¢ to the dollar was forecast. This figure has been the official quotation at the Banco Do Brasil for the past two weeks.

TEACHERS TO AID BACKWARD PUPIL

Discussion of methods for the instruction of backward and brilliant pupils in the same class and the reading of the survey committee's report, were highlights of the biennial convention of the Private School Association of Boston, held yesterday at the Brimmer School, Back Bay.

During the open discussion which followed the reading of the report, several members suggested individual work with pupils would be advantageous to both brilliant and backward scholars. Sectional committee meetings followed the opening session and plans for the winter convention at the Winsor School, in January were discussed.

A general session followed by an address on the "Relation of Mental and Physical Growth in a Child," by Prof. W. F. Dearbon of Harvard, concluded the program.

William L. W. Field, president of the association, presided. Other officers are Clarence E. Allen, vice-president; Miss Edna M. James, secretary; E. Prentiss Jones, treasurer; E. Prentiss Jones, treasurer; executive committee, Miss Mary L. Coffin, Hart Fessenden and Miss Katherine Taylor.

ALLEN EVADES REAL ISSUES, ELY CHARGES

Democratic Candidate Says His Opponent Lacks Leadership

FAILED ON PROMISES

Governor Made Little Effort to Aid Employment Until Too Late, He Says

Charges that Gov. Allen has evaded the important issues of the campaign, has displayed no leadership, and made little effort to relieve unemployment until the eve of the campaign, were hurled by Joseph B. Ely, Democratic candidate for Governor, in a radio speech yesterday.

He declared that the Republican administration, locally as well as nationally, has failed dismally to keep its continuance of prosperity promise made in 1928.

He scored Allen in connection with the work being done on the huge $25,000,000 water development project in western Massachusetts to augment Boston's supply, saying that instead of but 600 men engaged on thi work there should be from 5000 to 10,000.

Allen, he said, has not spent a single additional dollar of the State's money, but has merely passed "the buck" on to the cities and towns.

RIDICULES LIGHT CUT

The credit taken by the Governor for electric light rates was ridiculed by Ely. He claimed that in the Boston Edison case, the slight reduction in the rates was more than offset by the increased voltage of the bulbs sold to the public.

"I ask you ladies who may be listening in on the radio to look at your monthly bills and to ask yourselves whether or not you are paying less for lighting and power in your homes than you did formerly," he declared.

"There was a slight reduction in the rate, but if I am correctly informed you have been sold higher wattage bulbs. You are sold bulbs now that require more power. They give you more light, but cost you more money, to the advantage of the company and to the added expense of your pocket books."

"I have not heard a single political speech of importance this year that has not begun with the words 'In 1928,' the point of which is that attention is being focussed upon the broken promises of the Republican party.

"You will recall that during that campaign of 1928, the Republican orators and propagandists promised the electorate of the United States that if they should elect the Republican candidates for office they would be promised four years of uninterrupted prosperity.

"They told us that if the Democratic nominees should win that election factories would be closed, mills would be idle and that there would be unemployment throughout the land. President Hoover speaking in the course of his campaign in Newark in September, 1928, said that the continuance of employment and the prosperity of labor depended upon the continuance of Republican policies.

"From the things that have happened since October a year ago it is perfectly apparent that although Republican policies have been continued, employment has not been continued, and we are far from witnessing the prosperity of labor."

LIKENED TO FULLER

Ely was described as a man of the type of former Governor Alvan T. Fuller by ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, speaking at rallies last night in Dorchester, Roxbury, Roslindale and Hyde Park.

"Just as fearless, just as independent and just as progressive, with the instinct born in him like Fuller to fight for the underdog," Fitzgerald declared.

Replying to the charges made by Allen that Ely lacks public experience, Fitzgerald said:

"Neither had Woodrow Wilson, Dwight Morrow or Herbert Hoover. Alvan T. Fuller had very little experience when he went into the Governor's chair. He had to knock down Joseph E. Warner, the present attorney general, who, according to Calvin Coolidge standards, was the man by experience entitled to the job.

"But the people of the state felt that a man of Mr. Fuller's independence and courage was needed and gave him the place. How he succeeded the world knows from Boston to darkest Africa."

Fitzgerald ridiculed the appearance of Roger Babson on the stump for the Republican ticket. He charged that Babson advised his clients to sell their stock in 1926, that the "market would break at least 50 points."

"It did not break," the speaker continued. "But because of what President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon and Secretary Hoover had said the market went up 200 points or more to the great financial loss of those people who took Mr. Babson's advice."

RAPS "FANATICAL DRYS"

Without minimizing the tremendous importance of the unemployment issue, Marcus A. Coolidge in a radio speech last night declared that prohibition "is fundamentally of far greater moment since its existence vitally affects the soundness of our government and the continuance of our democracy upon a sincere and non-hypocritical basis."

He declared that the one group that refuse to recognize the change of the times since the adoption of the amendment are the "fanatical drys."

The letter, and seven others from the same woman, believed to be the wife of a bootlegger for whom Wilson worked, were found today in a deposit box of the Springfield National Bank.

PAROLED BOND THIEF HELD AS OFFICE LOOTER

Carl C. Harding, Convicted Twice for Stealing $160,000, Found With Master Key

Carl O. Harding, known as a gay spender in cafes, until a conviction of bond thefts cut short his career, was arrested again yesterday charged with larceny of checks, bankbooks and a set of keys to a downtown building.

He is on parole from State prison for bond thefts from a State st. broker in 1926.

Captured in the Beacon buildings, 6 Beacon st., he was found to have three bankbooks from the office of Atty. E. H. R. Burroughs of that buildings, six blank checks of the Pneumatic Drop Hammer Co., 141 Milk st., and a set of master keys for the building at the latter address.

Before Judge Thomas Dowd, who sentenced him four years ago, he was held in $1000 for hearing Nov. 19 and steps were taken to revoke his parole.

Harding was not sought but was said by police to have acted suspiciously in the building when Special Officer Thomas J. Kearns responded to a complaint that an annoyer was in the building.

Harding was first arrested in 1921 for the theft of $100,000 in Liberty bonds at South station. He served half a six-year sentence at Concord Reformatory and was paroled Thanksgiving Day, 1924.

Two years later he was arrested for the theft of $60,000 worth of bonds in the Exchange building, his capture following a running fight with police. The bonds were recovered in the same building.

Harding was born in Newton and has given a variety of addresses, including some in Brighton, Back Bay and Winthrop.

When he bought a mansion at Rockport, Me., he was received by neighbors with "Mrs. Harding" and was host to many functions in the set until the police made the first capture.

CONSTITUTION CONVENTION ON DRY ACT HINTED

Member of Hoover Law Enforcement Favors Considering the Proposal

SHOWDOWN THIS WEEK

Commission Will Meet to Prepare Report for Submission to Congress

Washington, Nov. 1 (AP)—Calling of a constitutional convention to consider the prohibition amendment is one of several nebulous proposals heard here from the ranks of the Hoover law enforcement commission as it approaches its showdown on the wet and dry issue next week.

The plan for a convention, provided it can be strictly limited to the prohibition subject, is known to be seriously considered, by at least one member of the commission, but there is doubt in the minds of other members that the necessary limitation can be imposed.

For that reason, the other members are studying additional prohibition proposals, and until the commission has fully discussed its views in secret session there are no authoritative prophecies on the outcome.

VOLSTEAD ACT UP FIRST

The members meanwhile insist they are keeping open minds for the discussions which begin next Wednesday, but their minds are well filled with facts from the exhaustive reports on prohibition conditions they have been going over.

There is every indication that the Volstead act, the machinery for enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment, is due for first consideration. But around the prohibition amendment itself the real deliberations of the commission seem likely to center.

It would be up to Congress to call a constitutional convention. By the selection of delegates to that convention each state would in effect, have a referendum on prohibition, in the opinion of those who are studying this plan.

QUESTION OF LIMIT

But there is a keen conflict of opinion on whether the convention could be limited to a consideration of the prohibition amendment and this forebodes a dubious future for the plan.

The Philadelphia convention called to consider amendments to the articles of confederation in the early days of the nation, resulted in an entirely new constitution. From this springs the fear on the part of many that such a convention can not be limited.

Little hope is held in the commission membership of an early agreement on a prohibition report although there is a distinct feeling that some report embodying the views of most of the 11 members can be agreed upon in time for submission to the next session of Congress which meets December 1.

YOUNGER FOLK HAVE THEIR DAY AT HORSE SHOW

Junior Smart Set Present Brilliant Spectacle at Matinee

PROMINENT DEBS THERE

Many of Juvenile Members of Society Are Guests at Box Parties

The junior smart set had its turn at the Horse Show yesterday in the Boston Garden and the matinee performance of the most spectacular indoor turf event Boston has ever witnessed was crowded with interested and applauding members of the younger social set.

The arena presented a brilliant picture with decorations of varicolored bunting, flags of all nations and huge silver horseshoes.

The Harold F. Tolmans of Beacon st. and Cohasset, entertained a group of young people in their box, and loud applause was evoked when Miss Virginia Tolman, one of the younger set's most proficient riders, rode Bonita to victory and a blue ribbon in the Saddle horse class for children.

Mrs. Tolman was most attractive in black broadtail coat trimmed with kolinsky and hat of black velvet with bows of Agnes blue.

BANCROFT PARTY

A merry group of sub-debutantes occupied the Hugh Bancroft box as guests of Miss Jane Bancroft, who entertained at luncheon in the Copley-Plaza before going to the show.

This party included Miss Polly Richardson, wearing a smart ensemble of King blue with gray fox fur and matching hat of felt; Miss Linda Collens, beige suit with beaver and brown felt hat; Miss Priscilla Dennett, also in beige. Miss Jane Bancroft wore an emerald green coat trimmed with beaver and cloche hat of brown felt.

Also in the Bancroft box were Mrs. William Cox (Jessie Bancroft), attired in dark red ensemble with beaver collar and small red hat; Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, black cloth coat with Persian lamb and black hat.

Miss Peggy Pierce, daughter of Mrs. Robert F. Herrick, Jr., of Beacon st. and the North Shore, was hostess to a party of young people in the Herrick box.

GUESTS OF FULLERS

Following luncheon in the Alvan T. Fuller home in Beacon st., Mrs. Fuller and her daughters, Mary and Lydia, took guests to the show. Their party included Mrs. Charles P. Sylvester, wearing hunters' green ensemble with matching hat and Miss Priscilla Hoyt, most attractive in frock of crimson crepe and hat of black velvet.

Mrs. Fuller wore wine-colored ensemble trimmed with beaver and matching hat; Mary was in dark Havana brown coat with matching hat and Miss Lydia a smart ensemble of red and black with matching hat and corsage of white gardenias.

Miss Eleonora Sears, attired in sports frock of gray with matching hat and black cloth coat with gray fox collar, watched the show from the George Saltonstall West box, as did Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Frothingham of New York and Mrs. Gilbert Steward (Anne Ayer) of Hamilton.

Mrs. West, looking smart in dress of dark green crepe and wrap of black broadtail with mink trimmings, served as one of the judges in the children's horsemanship class.

Reginald Bird and his daughters, Betty and Patricia, entertained friends in their box. Miss Betty Bird appeared in the ring frequently during the afternoon.

Miss Mabel Bradley, wearing a smart frock of dark red banded with gray fur and hat of red felt, was an interested spectator in the J. Gardiner Bradley box, and Miss Elizabeth Loring, in leopard coat trimmed with beaver and hat of black velvet, occupied a box with her mother, Mrs. Homer Loring.

Miss Edith Wolcott wore a wrap of sable over her green sports frock, and Miss Evelyn Royce was nattily attired in sports coat of beige tweed with raccoon collar and close-fitting hat of brown felt. They were guests in the J. Macey Willetts' box.

OTHERS THERE

Particularly attractive were Mrs. Paul Moore and her debutante daughter, Pauline, of Morristown, N. J., popular members of the North Shore summer colony.

The former wore a frock of black dull crepe with black velvet hat and sable wrap, and the latter a striking costume of old blue with gray fox collar and cuffs and matching blue hat of felt. Guests in the Moore box included Mrs. Richard Russell and Mr. Dudley Rogers of New York.

THOMSON ASKS U. S. MARINES BE WITHDRAWN

Latin-American Secretary Says Haiti-Nicaragua Intervention Is a Mistake

Members of the Twentieth Century Club applauded yesterday when Charles A. Thomson suggested that the United States withdraw its marines from Haiti and Nicaragua. It was the third luncheon meeting of the season.

Mr. Thomson's topic was "What shall we do about Latin American revolutions?" He is Latin American secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, and has spent the past year visiting various countries in Central and South America.

The Monroe Doctrine, he said, no longer aplies to existing conditions, and should be made into "a co-operative document, Pan-American." He questioned the wisdom and efficacy of intervention, and told of resentment in Caribbean countries over United States official methods.

Speaking of Dwight W. Morrow, former ambassador to Mexico, the speaker said:

"It is a question whether the word co-operation did not characterize rather his methods of approach than the substance of his work; but leaving that aside, there is no doubt of the efficacy of his work.

"No people likes to be forcibly reformed by foreigners, no matter how idealistic the aims of those foreigners may be."

The Caribbean, the speaker said, "is fast becoming an American lake," and English is passing French as the secondary language of Latin America.

"It is not at all clear that our past interventions have been justified," said Mr. Thomson. "If these countries need outside help, the possibilities of an international investigation should be explored. The efficacy of even joint intervention is doubtful. There are other ways.

"One is by withdrawing or granting credit, which is necessary to these countries; another is the power of diplomatic recognition, and another, the force of international public opinion. Thus, if we abandon intervention, it does not leave us with our hands tied."

Seven out of every ten people have defective eyesight in one form or another. Why? Because modern living conditions cause a tremendous strain on the eyes. You strive for various relaxations for the mind and body, but your eyes are scarcely ever allowed to rest except in sleep. Think of the millions of things your eyes are constantly attracted by—the glaring lights everywhere—constant reading—your work, which requires steady concentration on objects less than arm's length away. What is the result? "EYE STRAIN"—frequently continued until it becomes a menace to your eyes and your general health. You begin to get headaches, feel weary, nervous and irritable, and it is all caused by exhaustion of the eye muscles, trying to adjust themselves to the terrific strain placed on them. NATION-WIDE JOBLESS DRIVE GETS GOING

BOULDER DAM STARTED

Rep. Cellar of N. Y. Proposes Inauguration of Big Naval Program at Once

By PIERCE MILLER
International News Service

Washington, Nov. 1—The government's efforts to relieve the army of unemployment made progress today in several directions.

The interior department announced contracts totaling $3,000,000 for preliminary work on the Boulder Dam projects, ultimately to cost approximately $160,000,000 will be advertised November 15, several months ahead of schedule.

As soon as the bids are in and the contracts awarded 500 men will be put to work.

From industry also came advices of full co-operation with the campaign of the President's emergency employment committee.

Col. William Cooper Procter, chairman of Procter & Gamble, soap manufacturers of Cincinnati, notified Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the committee, that his company had put in effect a plan whereby its 10,000 employes in eight American and Canadian cities would be kept employed the year round.

50,000 TO BENEFIT

Woods estimated that as a result of Procter's action 50,000 men, women and children would be assured ability to live as they have been accustomed to living through this winter despite the depression.

The Procter & Gamble payroll amounts to $1,000,000 weekly, Procter advised Woods.

Meanwhile, the committee continued to receive suggestions from a multitude of sources, the most important of which came from Rep. Celler, Democrat, of New York.

Celler urged inauguration of navy building program to proceed at once to provide more jobs.

"Instead of building the ships alloted by the London treaty over a period of years," he said, "they should be built now. Eighty per cent of the cost of cruisers, battleships, airplanes or airplane carriers consists of wages to American workmen.

"The administration should crowd as much as possible of naval binlding into the next six months."

"WISE BUYING" URGED

He advocated starting at once the last of the cruisers authorized by Congress under the fifteen cruiser program (cut down to ten by the London treaty) and the second of the two authorized dirigibles, one of which is now under construction for the Navy in Akron, O.

Col. Woods today urged people to "economize wisely through wise buying."

He urged caution by those whose income was not fixed and who had no savings, but those who can afford it should buy now.

"It is too much to expect people without a fixed income and no savings to buy when it might be wiser for them to have some money ahead," he said. "Restoration of normal buying is what is needed."

Police hope to complete their canvass by next Friday, by which time they will be in position to dole out food baskets.

PARIS CHAMBER TO RATIFY PART OF NAVAL PACT

Only Secondary Clauses of London Accord With Italy to Be Approved

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI
Universal Service

Rome, Nov. 1—The French Chamber of Deputies, convening Tuesday, is expected to give prompt ratification of the secondary clauses of the London naval treaty signed by the French and Italian delegates.

It will not consider French adherence to the three power pact, however.

Such was the general opinion developed at conversations last night in which H. B. Gibson, United States ambassador to Belgium, participated. It was agreed that newspaper reports predicting the French chamber's ratification of the treaty were over-optimistic, particularly in view of the present Franco-Italian naval differences.

Mr. Gibson is in Rome preparatory to going to Geneva for the opening Thursday of the preparatory disarmament commission of the League of Nations. He came here fresh from conferences with French Premier Andre Tardieu and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand to meet the Italian foreign minister, Dino Grandi, and Premier Mussolini.

The ambassador pointed out that in order to obtain France's signature to the naval treaty, it would be necessary to reassemble the delegates of the five participating nations. Such action is considered most unlikely.

Gibson still maintains that he is in Rome purely as an observer, declining to comment on reports in semi-official circles that he is, in effect, "good will ambassador," commissioned to arbitrate the Franco-Italian impasse.

Both the ambassador and the Italian government today refused to give any indication of the subjects discussed by Gibson and Mussolini. It was remarked, however, that the ambassador is keeping in close touch with the French embassy.

Boston activities of Charles V. Bob, missing New York financier, whose investors are faced with possible loss of $12,000,000, will be probed this week in the Hub by the United States attorney-general's office.

Deputy Atty.-Gen. Staples, who has been investigating Bob's concerners in New York, left that city yesterday for Buffalo and Boston.

In both cities the deputy attorney-general will look into reported stock selling campaigns backed by the financier, who vanished from sight October 2 after flying from New York to Chicago in his Bellanca plane piloted by Dean Lamb.

A week ago his wife revealed that Bob had visited Boston to raise funds prior to his vanishing. She gave this information to investigators from the attorney-general's office.

LEFT WITHOUT FUNDS

According to Mrs. Bob, her husband left her no money when he disappeared, and she was sure he intended to return.

Bob is wanted for questioning concerning Metal & Mining Shares, Inc., and Rainbow Luminous Products Co., of which company the financier was formerly a director.

Trading in Rainbow Luminous was suspended by the New York Curb market on the day of Bob's disappearance. Investors are declared to have put $6,000,000 into stocks of the company.

HELPED BACK BYRD

In Metal & Mining Shares, Inc., a debit of $1,000,000 has been found, according to Alderman Francis McCarey of New York, attorney for the receivers.

Bob gave considerable money toward support of the Byrd expedition into the Antarctic, and Admiral Byrd later named a range of mountains in the Antarctic for the financier.

Revere Man Found Dead

Thomas Lynch, 60, was found dead in bed yesterday at 163 Shirley ave., Revere, by his landlady, shortly after he had gone home ill of heart disease.

FOUR REFERENDA BEFORE THE VOTERS ON TUESDAY

Referendum No. 3 would restrict the use of steel traps for the capture of fur-bearing animals.

Referendum No. 4 is a test of public opinion on the Boston Elevated to be voted upon in Boston and the other thirteen cities and towns of the Metropolitan District. Plan No. 1 of this referendum is for return of the road to the private owners. Plan No. 2 is to retain the road under private ownership with public operation. Plan No. 3 is for public ownership.

Robin No. 1, Flown by Jackson and O'Brien in Endurance Flight, Visits Boston

[illegible] M. L. "YOUNG" STRIBLING, heavyweight title contender who won over K. O. Christner Friday night by a technical knockout in three rounds, took off from Boston Airport for Atlanta, Ga., yesterday in his cabin Travel Air.

He was accompanied by his father, mother, wife and son. Evidently in good shape after his victory over Christner, Stribling left Boston Airport at 8:10 a. m., planning to get to Atlanta before dark, a flight of more than 800 miles.

His ship is named King of the Cane Brakes. Its license number is 470-H.

W. L. CASE, former R. F. C. [illegible] pilot flew St. Louis Robin No. 1 to Beverly yesterday to take customers and dealers for hops there.

This is the ship in which Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brien set their original record endurance mark. It is now owned by Gulf Refining Co. and is equipped with the fourth motor that has been installed since its record flight.

Case was accompanied by F. S. McKeen, in charge of New England aviation activities for the company.

Today the ship will be flown to Springfield, Monday to Hartford and then into the New York district.

Case landed here from York, Pa., coming by way of Providence, last Tuesday. Rain and fog held the ship here until yesterday.

FORTY-SIX BOYS of the Newton Y. M. C. A. spent the day at Boston Airport yesterday as the beginning of Aviation Month being sponsored by the association. Their average age was 12. John Andrews Jr., was in charge of the group. The boys brought their lunches which were eaten out of doors while they watched ships overhead.

During this month the boys will take up the building of model airplanes. At the close of Aviation Month a model plane contest will be held, with prizes for the winners.

A NEW round trip record for five place planes was set between Boston and Providence yesterday by Capt. Russell H. Young with two passengers in a $23,000 Lockheed cabin plane "Miss McAleer," flying each way in 18 minutes.

Capt. Russell is commander of a St. Louis National Guard aviation squadron. He is now on leave, flying this private ship of C. H. McAleer of Detroit, president of the McAleer Manufacturing Co.

Taking off from Boston Airport yesterday with Martin A. Dewey eastern manager for the company and Charles A. Harrington, New England salesman, as passengers, Capt. Russell landed at Providence 18 minutes later. The return trip was made in the same time.

He is making a tour of the country with McAleer and Dewey as passengers. The ship was flown East from the factory at Burbank, Cal. A record for planes of its size was made here from Springfield Friday when the distance was covered in 30 minutes. A Detroit-Buffalo hop had previously been made in one hour, 20 minutes.

The ship has been equipped with a typewriter, desk, and other office equipment which McAleer and Dewey use en route. Upon its return to Detroit it will be equipped with loudspeakers for broadcasting to the ground. Radio also will be installed.

The ship has a top speed of 200 miles an hour and will cruise at 150. It is the latest Lockheed model.

Even Apples Feel the Trend of Fashion

So Maude Chace Grows Huge Red Ones

Rhode Island Woman Proves That Farming Pays in New England

By BEN BOYDEN

Spragueville, R. I., Nov. 1.

STYLE and fashion are not limited to gowns and hats.

Visit the Homestead Orchards that are operated by Miss Maude Chace and you will find this interesting woman developing huge red Baldwin apples.

"Housewives demand red apples," Miss Chace told the Boston Sunday Advertiser today, "so apple growers must satisfy the demand. There are many brands of wonderful apples, but the red ones that take a bright polish, are the ones that are in demand.

"We have succeeded in grafting and, as a result, our Baldwin bearing trees have increased in number and productivity."

Miss Chace, before 1920, was the secretary of an educational institution in Providence, but in that year she decided to enter the apple business.

Accompanied by Miss Alice M. Comstock, she went to Amherst College and took a short course in fruit growing.

For the next few years she experimented on a farm in Cumberland, R. I., and in 1925 she and her partner, Miss Comstock, purchased the Albert J. Mowry farm in this town.

Partner Was Injured

"We loved outdoor life," said Miss Chace, "and also thought that apple growing would prove to be a profitable business for women. Three years ago my partner was injured, but despite her loss I have kept the business going.

"Two years ago I added peach growing as a side line and just for the fun of it I am raising a few turkeys. But this is an apple orchard and will remain such, because apples offer a greater security to the grower than other lines of fruit."

Miss Chace not only believes that farming in New England pays, but proving.

"Methods are changing," she asserted, "just as they are changing in other lines of business. Fortunately, our New England farmers and particularly our orchardists, are getting together. Today they are exercising great care in the growing of selected apples and after the fruit is picked great care is taken in the grading.

"Through the co-operation of our State agricultural departments in New England we are able to label our grade A fruit and the label means something. New England grade A apples are second to none in the country. They have size, color and taste, all that the public demands.

"In this State our agricultural department in the State College is extending splendid service. Experts at the college keep us posted on everything that tends to better the crop. This season the experts telephoned advice to apple growers. Most of this advice concerned spraying, an essential factor in the business."

Much Physical Work

Miss Chace says that there is ample room in her business for other women, but she advises those who contemplate entering it to think twice before making the leap.

Pointing to the overalls that she wears, she made it plain that there is an abundance of physical work attached to the business.

"The picking season is short and it means long hours for everybody concerned," she said. "I have assistants but I must be on the orchards doing my share of the work and after that comes the packing.

"There are the business problems, too. It is necessary to sell the crop after it is packed and I handle that detail myself. One does better by selling a crop to individual buyers than by selling to wholesalers, so the bulk of my apples goes to private customers."

As she explained the marketing problems she and one of her assistants, Miss Antoinette Criscitiello of Jersey City, packed several baskets of grade A fruit. The apples, of uniform size and color are packed in paper lined baskets so snugly that the apples are not bruised in shipment.

Life on this apple farm tucked away among the hills of northern Rhode Island is pleasant. It is only 12 miles from the heart of Providence.

'Keep Balfour Pledge or Quit Holy Land,' Says Churchill

FORMER CHANCELLOR SEES OBLIGATION AS BINDING

Undertaken as War Measure and Not to Be Voided Because Fulfillment Is Difficult, Insists Conservative Leader

By WINSTON CHURCHILL

British Conservative Leader, Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Baldwin Cabinet

(Copyright, 1930, by Jewish Telegraphic Agency. Distributed by Universal Service, Inc.)

London, Nov. 1.

THERE ARE four milestones or sign-posts in British policy toward Zionism and Palestine, and the question which has now arisen, is whether they all point the same way.

Irrepressible Statesman

A FAMOUS CARICATURE OF WINSTON CHURCHILL, First Lord of the Admirality in the Asquith cabinet during the opening days of the World War and Chancellor of the Exchequer in the cabinet of Premier Baldwin. The picture is the work of Low, celebrated London cartoonist.

The first of these sign-posts was erected when, on November 2, 1917, the late Lord Balfour addressed to Lord Rothschild the letter known as "The Balfour declaration."

"His majesty's government," wrote the British Foreign Secretary, "view with favor the establishment in Palestine of a national home for Jewish people and will use their best endeavors to facilitate achievement of this object."

The year 1917 marked perhaps the most drear and sombre period of war. It was the time when many hitherto unswerving despaired of victory of the allies. It was the moment when most resolute elements of the British Government sought to enlist every influence that could hold allied the associated nations to their task.

Pro-British

Jewish Influence Cast in Favor of Allies

The Zionist movement throughout the world was actively pro-ally, and in a special sense pro-British. Nowhere was this movement more noticeable than in the United States, and upon the active share of the United States in the bloody struggle which was impending rested a large proportion of our hopes.

The able leaders of the Zionist movement and their widespread branches exercised an appreciable influence upon American opinion and that influence—like the Jewish influence generally—was steadily cast in our favor.

Throughout the world of allied nations, Jews (Zionist and non-Zionist alike) sympathized with the allies and worked for the success of Great Britain and the close co-operation with Great Britain of the United States.

The Balfour declaration, therefore, must not be regarded as a promise given from sentimental motives; it was a practical measure taken in the interests of a common cause at a moment when that cause could afford to neglect no factor of material or moral assistance.

The second milestone was the acceptance in 1919 of the Palestinian mandate by Great Britain upon certain express terms. Article 2, the prime and fundamental article, states:

"The mandatory shall be responsible for placing the country under such political, administrative and economic conditions as will secure the establishment of the Jewish national home, as laid down in the preamble, and the development of self-governing institutions, and also for safeguarding the civil and religious rights of all inhabitants in Palestine, irrespective of race or religion.

The dual obligation, no doubt replete with difficulties, was deliberately accepted by Great Britain.

Upon this obligation the permanent mandate commission of the League of Nations, surveying the problem ten years later, made in 1929 the following pronouncement:

First — "That obligations laid down in the mandate in regard to the two sections of population are of equal weight."

Second — "That the two obligations imposed on the mandatory power are in no sense irreconcilable."

The two obligations are indeed of equal weight but they are different in character. The first obligation is positive and creative, the second obligation is safeguarding and conciliatory.

Obligations

Both Are Binding Upon British Empire

Our mandatory obligations towards the Jews throughout the world who helped us, and towards Palestinian Arabs, who were the conscript soldiers of our Turkish enemy are both binding, and we are bound both to persevere in establishment of the Jewish national home and in safeguarding the civil and religious rights of Arabs.

Merely to sit still and avoid friction with Arabs and safeguard their civil and religious rights and to abandon the positive exertion for the establishment of the Jewish national home would not be a faithful interpretation of the mandate.

Lord Passfield is not stating the case truly when he writes in the new White Paper:

"It is clear from the wording of this article that the population of Palestine, and not any sectional interest, is to be the object of the government's care."

The essence of the Balfour declaration in 1917, and the intention of the mandate in 1919 was that "the sectional interest" of the Jews in the establishment of their national home was to be the object of the government's care, and in the words of the article, the mandatory power assumed responsibility for bringing about the political, administrative and economic conditions which would secure the establishment of the Jewish national home.

The third milestone is found in the colonial office dispatches and correspondence published in June, 1922. Here we have quitted the region of mandates and declarations, and the British Government is face to face with the inherent, though not insuperable, difficulties of the problem.

They have to set limits both of speed and method to practical year-to-year progress of the Zionist scheme. They have to offer to the Arab population definite and concrete assurance as to the sphere within which their civil, religious rights will be safeguarded.

Instructions telegraphed on June 29 from the colonial office to the officer administering the government of Palestine set this out in a simple summary:

"Firstly, the majesty's government reaffirm the declaration of November, 1917, which is not susceptible to change.

"Secondly, a Jewish national home will be founded in Palestine. The Jewish people will be in Palestine as a right and not on sufferance. But the majesty's government have no such aim in view as that Palestine should become as Jewish as England is English.

"Thirdly, nor do the majesty's government contemplate the disappearance or subordination of the Arab population, language or culture.

"Fourthly, the status of all citizens of Palestine will be Palestinian; no section of the population will have any other status in the eye of the law."

(There are other points in the telegram, but they need not be cited here.)

This statement of practical policy required to fulfill the obligations of the mandate, and of the Balfour declaration was inconsistently rejected by the Arabs and accepted only with extreme disappointment by the Zionists.

Nevertheless, the executive of the Zionist organization passed a resolution assuring his Majesty's government that the activity of the organization would conform to the policy therein set forth, and in a letter conveying the text of this resolution, Dr. Chaim Weizmann wrote:

Fourth Milestone

Is Largely a Question of Emphasis

"The Zionist organization at all times has been sincerely desirous of proceeding in harmonious co-operation with all sections of the people of Palestine. It has repeatedly made it clear both in word and deed that nothing is further from its purpose than prejudice in the smallest degree of civil or religious rights or material interests of the non-Jewish population."

On this basis, therefore, the government of Palestine has been conducted for the intervening eight years.

We now come to the fourth milestone, namely the White Paper issued from the colonial office by Lord Passfield in the present month.

The question which has to be judged is whether the new declaration of the Socialist government departs from the position established in 1922, which position was, however, reluctantly accepted by Zionists as an interpretation of the Balfour letter and of the mandate. Here it should be said that the difference is largely one of emphasis.

Lord Passfield is an aged minister worn with a lifetime of literary and sociological labors, who has, as is well known, long been anxious to seek repose. It may well be that he has not given that intense personal attention and original effort to this White Paper that the controversial delicacy and importance of subject required.

No one, according to the premier, was more surprised than the colonial office at the interpretation placed upon their document. The alteration of the emphasis of a few passages and phrases might easily have brought the balance of the statement into harmony with the balance achieved in 1922. This, we hope, may yet be done.

There are, however, at least two deviations of principles which must be remarked. The first has already been mentioned.

Lord Passfield in basing himself upon the report of the permanent mandates commission of the League of Nations that the obligations laid down by the mandate in regard to the two sections of population are of equal weight, has overlooked or ignored the fact that the obligations are totally different in character.

Secondly, frequent use in Lord Passfield's paper of mandatory obligations to "inhabitants of Palestine, both Arabs and Jews," diverges fundamentally from the 1922 White Paper, which, following upon the Balfour declaration and the mandate, recognized an obligation not only to the inhabitants of Palestine—Arab or Jew—but to the Zionist movement all over the world to whom the original promise was made.

"When it is asked," says the White Paper of 1922, "what is meant by the development of the Jewish National Home in Palestine, it may be answered that it is not the imposition of a Jewish nationality upon the inhabitants of Palestine as a whole, but the further development of the existing Jewish community, with the assistance of Jews in other parts of the world, in order that it may become a centre in which Jewish people as a whole may take, on grounds of religion and race, an interest and pride.

One Relief Only

Must Fulfill Pact or Leave Holy Land

"But in order that this community should have the best prospect of free development and provide full opportunity for the Jewish people to display its capacities, it is essential that it should know that it is in Palestine as of right and not of sufferance.

"That is the reason why it is necessary that the existence of the Jewish National Home in Palestine should be internationally guaranteed, and that it should be formally recognized to rest upon the ancient historic connection."

Discrepancy in fact and in spirit is obvious.

British obligation is not limited to the inhabitants of Palestine. It must also comprise further external obligation. The duty of the British government cannot be discharged merely by a convenient administrative treatment of a local situation.

There is no use at this stage, in examining whether the obligations which Great Britain has contracted by the Balfour letter and the Palestine mandate were wise or unwise. The sole question is whether they are being fulfilled.

If it is held by impartial opinion that they are not being fulfilled or that they are incapable of fulfillment, or that our present government has neither the will nor the means to persevere in their fulfillment, there is one relief and one relief only which can be sought.

No one could claim that the British nation is bound for all time, irrespective of events or of their own physical and moral strength to pursue the policy of establishment of the Jewish National Home. But from the moment that we recognize and proclaim that we have departed from these undertakings, and are regarding the Zionist cause as a mere inconvenient incident in the colonial office administration of Palestine, we are bound to return our mandate to the League of Nations and forego the strategic moral and material advantage arising from the British control of, and association with, the Holy Land.

Did your child have the Whooping Cough recently?

Whooping Cough requires your doctor's care. Follow his directions carefully. And, after the disease has run its course, remember that your child's strength is low. Months of hacking and discomfort have sapped his vitality.

A half-sick, run-down child is ill-equipped to face winter's dangers. Now is the time to build up health and vigor.

For over 75 years Father John's Medicine has proved its worth as a body builder, as a tonic for weak, run-down children, as an aid to healthy vigor.

It supplies in easily assimilated form the food elements that your child vitally needs and which are missing from so many modern diets. Pale, half-sick children pick right up. Colds become few and far between. Weight is added, strength returns.

Father John's Medicine is a combination of valuable ingredients, none of which could harm an infant. It contains no alcohol or drugs. Because of its scientific preparation it brings to your child all the benefits of cod liver oil in its finest form. It is rich in vitamins. Children thrive on it amazingly. And they love to take it, because it tastes good.

If your child has been sick recently, if it catches cold easily, if it is pale, listless or underweight, try Father John's Medicine. Over 184 hospitals and institutions use it regularly. Countless mothers are never without it. All drug stores have it in stock.

Girl Theology Student Is Also Champion Potato Digger

RETURNS TO HER STUDIES AND MARRIES

Romance of the New England School of Theology, Co-Educational

CAMPAIGNS FOR $11,000

Fifteen of Its Girl Graduates Have Become Brides of Ministers

By KATHERINE BROOKS

THERE ARE vocations and vocations. Some girls are predestined for wifehood. Some are "called" to a profession. Some are champion potato-diggers.

Such was the case with Miss Elsie MacLeod. Miss MacLeod was a student at the New England School of Theology, which trains both girls and young men for the ministry. On her vacations she went home to northern Maine.

It was potato-digging time in Aroostook County. Miss MacLeod lent a hand.

Whether training for the ministry makes for general efficiency, or whether Miss MacLeod was just a natural-born potato digger, has not been settled. At any rate, she proved to be the champion for northern Maine.

Returning to her studies, she found another vocation calling her. She married Alvin Blackstone, another student at the New England School of Theology. This is only one instance showing how many fields are open to Miss 1930.

One-Third Are Girls

The New England School of Theology has been training girls for the ministry for more than a decade. It is co-educational, and has at present an enrollment of 27 students. One-third of these are girls.

On graduation, some go to pastorates; some become evangelists, traveling from place to place by invitation, to preach. Others take up welfare work along religious lines.

Some of the "co-eds" become wives of ministers, and their theological training makes them valuable in this capacity.

Since establishment of the school 225 students have been enrolled. Of these, 86 have entered the ministry as pastors; 16 have served in the foreign missions field, and five have become evangelists. Fifteen of the girl graduates have married ministers.

The school was established in 1895 in Chelsea, by vote of the Advent Christan Conference. A charter was secured two years later and the training school was first known as "The Boston Bible School."

It changed its name to The Ransom Institute, and finally adopted that of "The New England School of Theology," under which it now operates at 17 Rockville pk., Roxbury.

The principal is Dr. Guy Linwood Vannah. Its lecturers include the Rev. J. William Denton, the Rev. M. M. Chadsey, the Rev. H. W. Hewitt and Ivan S. Nowlan.

Operating Expenses Sought

At present the school is conducting a drive for operating expenses, its quota being $11 000.

Owing to difficulties encountered by students in finding living quarters conveniently located and reasonable in price, women of the organization established a home in connection with the school in 1904. Quarters were at first rented, but later the property of 17 Rockville pk. was bought and a brick annex was added to the original building.

In the original building are now found the class rooms, principal's office and boys' dormitories.

The new building houses the dining hall, kitchen, pantry, an up-to-date laundry and the girls' dormitories.

Students of many nationalities from all parts of the world have been enrolled.

NEWTON DECLINES SCHOOL LAND GIFT

An offer of Arnold Hartmann, Newton real estate developer, to donate a tract of land in the Oak Hill district as a site for a school building was declined yesterday by the Newton school committee.

Good Yield Assured

Investors Realize an Immediate and a Continuing Benefit

Impatience and too much patience are both apt to be disastrous to the man or woman who attempts to invest saved dollars to maximum advantage. Some try to "double their money overnight"—with dire results all too frequently. Others entirely overlook the factor of current income (which may be 3%, 2%, or even less) in the expectation that eventually they will have opportunity to sell their security at enough more than its cost to compensate them handsomely for the long wait.

The more discerning and cautious investor need take neither the one course nor the other. Rather, having first satisfied himself as to its intrinsic soundness, he will insist on an investment that yields him a good return from the start — and assures him an uninterruptedly good return.

Nothing would give me greater pleasure, but regret that I cannot fix date until after I arrive in New York and ascertain my engagements there. Would ask you, therefore, to kindly defer any arrangements. Warmest thanks and best wishes."

GROWTH REPORTED BY SCOTT FURRIERS

Scott Furriers of 69 Summer st. enjoyed increased business and completed a program of expansion this year, a report issued by the company showed.

The report revealed that during 1930 no employes were discharged, no salaries reduced, selling space added, two new stores opened, new delivery cars and extensive office equipment purchased and advertising budget increased.

The success was credited by officials to the concern's faith in business prosperity.

B. U. Girl Plans Cuban School

Havana doesn't know it yet, but some day, not too distant, she will have a school with teaching modelled along Boston University lines.

Maria Trujillo

Miss Maria T. Trujillo, pretty and 18, daughter of one of Havana's leading lawyers, has been at Boston University eight weeks now to learn how to start and conduct a school of her own when she wins her degree of Bachelor of Science in Education.

"At home," she said yesterday, "we use one text book and it is the source of all our information on the subject. Here we use many reference works and add to our first knowledge of a certain line in many ways."
